REICHSTAG IS AGITATED

Touled Sessions Develop Over Declaration of Government's Pan-German Activities.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Amsterdam, Oct. 8.—General Goethin, progressive member of the Reichstag, is quoted in a Berlin dispatch as having said at a meeting of the general committee of his party, that although the military situation was satisfactory there was no hope of crushing Germany's enemies on land. As for the submarine campaign seven million tons of shipping had been sunk, he asserted, but no disposition for peace on the part of England was discernible. A rational system for food stuffs had not been even introduced and no one was able to say when the U-boats would make England more inclined for peace.

Can't Force America
"America can not be forced to make peace," Goethin continued. "We cannot force America to pay a war indemnity, but perhaps we can make England pay. But should we, in order to obtain an indemnity of million marks, sacrifice fifty million and another half million men."

Peace Greatly Desired
Germany's allies, he continued, were not inclined to continue the war for practical plans of conquest, but were striving for peace, by understanding and conciliation, while the Pan-German clamor for annexation was finding a bad reception among them. He asserted that the working hours and insufficient feeding at home increased the desire for peace among the workers and strikes might be expected if the war should be continued for aims of conquest.

May Force Declaration
Former Chancellor Von Bethman-Hollweg some months before his resignation had a last meeting with the Reichstag in Tübingen, the repeated organizer of ruthless submarine warfare and the chancellor was.

The admiral has been busy and the Reichstag according to recent reports has been very active in opposing the Reichstag majority declaration for peace without annexations or indemnities.

Issue is Clarified.
It has now come to a test between the followers of Von Tuppitz and the Reichstag on one side and the majority of the Reichstag on the other. Recent reports have shown that the feeling between the Pan-Germans and the Reichstag majority has been becoming more intense. Socialist members of the Reichstag have gone so far as to charge that the agitation of the Pan-German is dividing the German people into two camps on the question of the aims of the war.

External pressure to force the German government to accept the war aims clearly, having failed on the surface, internal conditions within the empire threatened to compel the issue of a full statement of the aims of the Reichstag. German leaders want if they are successful will be discussed in the Reichstag this week, probably today. The Imperial Chancellor Dr. Michaelis is finding the way as difficult as it was for his predecessor Von Bethman-Hollweg and he must now face the critics of the government in the Reichstag today.

Michaelis sent Minister of the Interior Helfferich before the Reichstag Saturday to make a statement on his behalf. Helfferich failed to mollify the critical members of the Reichstag and the sitting was adjourned until today after the vice-chancellor's speech had been interrupted. General Stein the war minister was jeered when he attempted to explain the army side of the situation that the high command was pursuing stern methods to help the Pan-German advocacy.

Censure Helfferich
The Germany newspapers which support the Reichstag majority, severely censure Dr. Helfferich, vice-chancellor and minister of the interior for his incapacity to respond to the feelings of the Reichstag. They think the future of the government may depend on the debate to begin Monday, in view of the motion of the Independent Socialists. "The Reichstag is of the opinion that the reply of the government to the interpellation did not meet the intentions of the Reichstag."

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
London, Oct. 8.—The first winter weather to hit Scandinavia has made its appearance on the western front. High winds, rain, snow and fog are hampering the operations of the British in the Flanders front and the British in the Flanders front. ## GERMAN PRISONER

AMERICA IS IN WAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

American Field Headquarters, France, Oct. 8.—An American army surgeon who has just returned from the British front had an interesting experience while there in convincing a skeptical German officer prisoner that America is seriously in the war and will in due time be doing her mite in the trenches.

He was serving in an advanced dressing station during a British attack and the German officer, slightly wounded, was brought in for treatment. The surgeon wore a uniform of the United States insignia he wore. The German officer spoke excellent English and engaged in conversation with the officer, thinking him English.

"Where did you get your facility in English?" the doctor inquired. "In Chicago," replied the German. "Why there for many years."

"Well, what do you think of America coming into the war?" "Oh, it won't make any military difference. We have not been taken in by any of the promises of American help already near the front. You English needn't think you are going to get any quick help from America. They are not prepared for it, and even if they were, our U-boats would keep them away."

"So there are no Americans here?" queried the doctor.

"Well, what do you think of this?" He slowly turned back his apron and disclosed the tell-tale "U. S." on his collar.

"How did you get here?" It was the startled German's turn to become the questioner.

"I came with part of the American army."

"Then American soldiers really are here and are going to fight?" "Of course."

"How many are there?" "More thousands than you would ever imagine."

"But tell me, doctor—"

"Sorry, but you will have to pass along. I have other patients waiting."

BELGIAN MOTORBOAT

RUNS HUN BLOCKADE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Amsterdam, Oct. 8.—The Belgian motor boat Scaldia recently ran the Hun blockade and arrived safely in Holland with a load of prominent Belgian refugees. The incident has aroused much interest along the whole length of the Scheldt.

The Scaldia formerly belonged to the Belgian government and was confiscated by the Germans. A Belgian pilot, Jef Van Ningen, was given the post of captain because of his intimate knowledge of the river. He frequently had the governor-general on board and from the mast they generally floated an admiral's flag, which was very guard on the river and canals showed respect.

"Jef" some time ago determined to make a serious attempt to convey to safety a group of prominent Belgians who were in danger of prosecution by the German, and these men were willing to risk their lives to escape. Jef had orders to take the governor-general from Antwerp to Brussels on the following Monday.

He figured that if he cruised northward on Sunday the guards along the Scheldt would think the governor-general was taking a short trip to the frontier. He started at noon, hoisting the admiral's flag.

The Belgian civilians were hidden below deck, and two assistants, one remaining above deck. They passed the forts of St. Marie and Philip de Paarl and by Lieke and Doel, their flag was everywhere saluted by the soldiers. At Doel the whole guard turned out.

Close to the frontier the motor stopped, gasoline being almost exhausted. A German patrol boat approached, but no assistance being asked it apparently did not care to come alongside a boat carrying the admiral's flag. By a friendly salute Jef intimated that he did not need assistance.

After some tinkering the motors were made to work a little longer, and the tide also helped. Thus the vessel reached Dutch waters where they were met by the Dutch patrol and given enough gasoline to get it to the nearest port, where captain and passengers were warmly welcomed.

THOUGHTS TO THINK ABOUT

Fame outlives life and becomes a monument to the dead; monumental fame a fable becomes to teach the living to live.

Take a look at yourself as others see you; put yourself in their shoes and you'll believe the talk you have heard about yourself to be true.

Weakness of character is developed in some people by the pretense to goodness; sham piety breeds impurity.

Loyalty leads to better life and lends a charm to the living; love is the key to loyalty.

Exchanging your business for a house and lot is easy to do and just as profitable as if you would first sell and then buy again.

EDGERTON HIGH TRIMS
MT. HOREB BY SCORE OF 20-6

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Oct. 8.—The new high school team played its first game yesterday afternoon in defeat against Mt. Horeb by a score of 20 to 6. Both teams were green. This was the first game in evidence. On the Edgerton team each man was playing his first game in his present position, only two of last year's team being in the lineup.

The squad sent in the first quarter resembled a rag-tag and bob-tail, and in the second quarter the same squad remained in and registered a touchdown, failing to kick goal. Both scores were made by Hal Backus. At the opening of the third quarter a complete new team was sent into the game. With one minute to play this team tried a forward pass when twenty yards from its own goal. The ball was caught by a Mr. Horeb player and a touchdown was the result.

In the third quarter Peters again scored. Goal was kicked and the final score was 20 to 6.

Peters and Kemp showed up particularly well. Ellingsen at center gave indication of developing into a strong white running and Curran in the backfield will undoubtedly prove a dangerous ground-gainer with a developed interference.

When the fact is considered that Mr. Horeb has had no team for two years, great credit is to be given Coach Agnew and his boys for the splendid showing which they made.

RECRUIT MEN FOR NEW AIR SERVICE

The Military Training Camp Association is now seeking recruits for a new and interesting branch of the service. This new branch of the service is for the purpose of making observations from captive balloons. This is an opportunity for those who were unable to gain admission in the officers' training camps, for one reason or another. The government wants men of the calibre of officers in the United States army who are between the ages of 25 and 35. The lowest rank of this new branch is first lieutenant, with pay of $2,000 per year, and 50 per cent extra when in active service.

Men who are well educated and who have graduated from some technical college; also men who have had wide athletic experience and preference. The course of instruction extend over a period of two months, and men having successfully passed their examinations for commissions will be immediately placed in France and put into action at once.

George S. Parker, local branch chairman of the Military Training Camps Association, has applied for commissions for all mail and details of the new branch of the service. Mr. Parker urges that those intending to investigate this proposition see him at once, as only a limited number of applications can be received.

MAIL REGULATIONS

FOR MEN IN FRANCE

Mail to Expeditionary Forces Must Be Mailed by Nov. 15—Must Be Examined Before It Is Sent.

Bulletins containing valuable and very important information regarding the Christmas mail which is to be sent to the American military forces abroad have been received by postmaster J. J. Cunningham of the local office. The bulletins contain all the information relative to the methods which will be used to transport the mail to the men on the fighting line. The postoffice authorities, in co-operation with the military authorities, will give their best efforts to the sending of all mail and articles to the men at the front.

The government recognizes the unusual coming Christmas with the large number across the waters and realizes that the military, naval and civilian forces stationed there will be the recipients of numerous gifts from friends and relatives at home.

In order that the authorities may do the best possible work in a prompt and satisfactory manner, a few regulations have been compiled which will govern the carrying of all the mails.

The announcement to the public is made with the co-operation of A. S. S. Burleson, postmaster general; Newton D. Baker, secretary of war; and Joseph Daniels, secretary of the navy.

The three essential respects in which the public can aid in assuring a happy Christmas at the front are: 1. Mail must be addressed to the person for whom it is intended, and in the upper left hand corner the name and address of the sender.

2. Every parcel must be so packed that it will stand up to inspection by the postmaster. No parcel will be dispatched to France which has not the postmaster's certificate that it contains no prohibited articles.

Following is a sample of the address on a package or letter which must be used to assure the same arrival at the front:

Co. N, Infantry.

LA FOLLETTE'S REPLY.

Robert M. La Follette showed no spirit of contrition for his past misdeeds, gave no promise to be good in the future and openly boasted of his intention to continue to lead the federal government, the United States senate, rendering valuable aid to the pro-German sympathizers in his speech in the senate Saturday. Public opinion was openly scoffed and the men and women who are doing their utmost to make this nation fit and prepared for the strife were insulted.

Every soldier or sailor who wears the government uniform and his life jeopardized by the atrocities of Wisconsin's senator United States senator when he reiterated on the floor of the house his views so often expressed before, that this nation had no right to go to war, and that now that it was in the war it should designate upon what terms peace should be made at once.

As one senator in replying to him said: "The time to make peace is when the armies of Russia, England, France and the United States have crossed onto German soil and given the German emperor a real taste of what ruthless warfare really is not now." Another senator stated that dared he utter such statements as the Wisconsin senator he would expect to resign in Congress or go over to Germany to make his home.

It is up to the senate to expel him from their midst. The subcommittee having the investigation in charge should spare no means to go to the bottom of the activity of this man whose utterances are a menace to the nation. His speech alone at the Milwaukee meeting is enough to brand him as traitor for public office, but his letters and public utterances elsewhere should also be considered and acted upon.

When there is an utter that saps away life in the human system radical steps are taken to eradicate the evil and cure the patient. The senate committee is acting as the physician in this case and it is to be hoped they will eradicate the La Follette ulcer from the government as quickly as possible.

DISINTEGRATING STATES.

"Czar Czernin's speech, as reported from Vienna by way of Amsterdam, is interesting, not because he is the Austrian minister for foreign affairs, or because he talks the usual nonsense about 'no annexations and no indemnities' (with the usual reservations), or even because he threatens the dreadful things Austria will do in future if the plan of freedom of the seas is not accepted. Austria is doing all she knows now, and finding the effort increasingly hard. If General Cadorna cannot be moved by men and guns, making faces at him will probably not be of much avail," says an exchange.

"But the interesting part of the Austrian minister's speech is where he goes out of his way to deny that the Austrian empire is disintegrating. He is right for the wrong reason when he says that nations cannot be disintegrated from outside, although Frederick the Great, in the infamous partition of Poland, performed an operation not unlike it. But nations do disintegrate, as history tells us, and empires are especially vulnerable. On the precedent of Rome and Athens, republics are a better insurance risk on their life prospect."

"Probably the greatest danger before the central powers at this time, in the matter of its permanent consequence, is disintegration from within. Saxony, Bavaria, Wurttemberg and the other states which constitute the German empire are all disintegrating. The German empire is disintegrating, and even so far as solidarity for war purposes allows, almost hostile. Austria is in the worst case because the kingdom of Hungary and that part of German Austria which includes Vienna are bound together, not by common interest, but by common fear."

"German diplomacy has never discovered that empires cannot be disintegrated from without, or her foreign minister would not have made his ridiculous offer of southwestern states of our union to Mexico, nor would the German foreign office have pursued its ten-year campaign to sow discord between this country and Japan. In fact, the Wilhelmstrasse had realized that might and bribery are not equal to necessity. Germany might have been saved from war by disavowal and bankruptcy. So far from disintegrating the British empire, her efforts have knitted it together with bonds of steel."

"And yet Count Czernin is trying to talk sense, and obviously groping for the light. When he begins to realize and to teach his countrymen that neither domination nor sound reason is to be had from Berlin, peace will be in sight. But the disintegration of Austria depends upon the people of that country, who cannot be blind to the objectlessness furnished by their eastern neighbor."

BE PREPARED.

With Liberty bonds, subscriptions for funds for the soldiers' library, a campaign for membership to the Y. M. C. A. all under way, Janesville promises to be in the throng of a financial crisis these next few weeks. In the midst of it all comes the women of the city seeking to do their part in the civic life by raising a fund to continue the excellent work the Janesville Center has accomplished in the past year. They are not seeking contributions, but will hold this week—Thursday and Friday—a monster rummage sale. Persons who are not thoroughly acquainted with the work of the Janesville Center should visit the headquarters at 100 North Main street and look with interest upon the treasures that will be brought forth from the hidden recesses of the attic or darkest store room. Be prepared to find something you have always longed for and never could afford, for

Just Folks

(By Edgar A. Guest.)

ALONE.
Strange thoughts come to the man alone;
'Tis then, if ever, he talks with God.
And views himself as a single cloud
In the soil of life where the souls are grown;
'Tis then he questions the why and where;
The start and end of his years
and days.
And what is blame and what is praise.
And what is ugly and what is fair.

When a man has drawn from the busy throng,
To the sweet retreat of the silent hours,
Low voices, whisper of higher powers.
He catches the strain of some far-off song.
And the sham fades out and his eyes are free to see
Not the man he is in the day's hot strife
And the greed and grind of a selfish life.
But the soul of the man he is to be.

He feels the throbbing of life divine,
And catches a glimpse of the greater plan.
He questions the purpose and the work of man;
In the hours of silence his mind grows fine:
He seeks to learn what is kept unknown;
He turns from self and its garb of clay
And dwells on the soul and the higher way.
Strange thoughts come when a man's alone.

SUNDAY EVENING FIRE DAMAGES WELLWORTH STORE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Evansville, Oct. 8.—Evansville was startled out of its Sunday calm shortly before six o'clock Sunday evening by the clang of the fire bell, and when it became known that the fire was in the Wellworth store, extra alarm was sent to the fire department. During the afternoon one of the employees was in the store and accidentally pushed the switch to a motor that is used in that store, so that when the electric current was turned on, about four o'clock, the motor started going and was burning itself out. It was discovered by Night Officer Albert Blunt, who forced an entrance into the store. The department was soon at hand and the fire was fought. The cause of the burning out of the motor, though but little further damage was done. Had it not been discovered promptly, very serious damage would have been the result. The store is now closed pending adjustment of insurance.

Last Thursday Officer Jewel arrested John Blich, a farmer living east of Janesville, for driving an automobile while intoxicated. Officer Jewel captured the man on Cherry street and he was held here until brought before Police Officer Slauson Friday, where he was fined $25 and costs. This is only an example of what the officers here intend to do with that class of law-breakers. Such drivers will be watched for and when taken will be dealt with summarily, receiving the benefit of the maximum limit of the fine.

The chairman of the knitting department of the local Red Cross, requests all persons who have taken yarn to knit for Red Cross benefit to finish and return all work this week. Mrs. John Thornton has returned to her home in Juda after a pleasant visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Borchers.

W. R. C. Inspection Held Recently.
Evansville, Oct. 6.—Thursday was a gala day for the local W. R. C. A very delicious supper was served at 7 o'clock. Following the supper the corps was inspected by Mrs. Mary A. Daly of Milwaukee, so that the evening proved to be very enjoyable.

The Evansville W. R. C. is a very active, patriotic organization, doing many good deeds for those who are in need. During the past year the members have pioneered many movements in raising money for our local midler boys, so that any young man who claims Evansville for his home and who is serving his country in any way received a check from the W. R. C. The boys have left and are leaving the money is paid them. The dancing party given last evening in Magee's hall was a very enjoyable affair. A large number of young people were present. Dancing began at 9 p. m. and continued until 1 a. m.

At Odd Fellows' hall Marlow Smith and Lynn Roberts were hosts at a dancing party, the sophomore class being their guests. The occasion was a very delightful one.

SOCIETY SEES AN UNUSUAL COSTUME

Miss Eugenia K. Cassatt in her combination costume.

At the Bryn Mawr sporting carnival and horse show, recently held as a Red Cross benefit at the Bryn Mawr polo field, Miss Eugenia K. Cassatt of Philadelphia, interested many with her unusual costume. She wore the Red Cross uniform over her riding habit, epitomizing, one might say, the two purposes of the event.

Noah had to work a long time on that ark. It was uphill business, too, at best, building a boat away on dry land, while the local anvil and hammer club sat around whittling up his pine boards with their jackknives and telling him what a fool he was for expecting rain in coming. But he kept at it. Finally the flood came, and every mother's son of the croakers was drowned. This is the only instance we know in either sacred or profane history where a bunch of knackers got exactly what was coming to them.

CAMPAIGNERS START BOND DRIVE TODAY

SOLICITING MACHINE IN PERFECT WORKING ORDER FOR NEXT TWO WEEKS' DRIVE IN COUNTY

TO COVER THE COUNTY

Local Committees Co-operating With Specialized County Committees To Reach Every Individual

With an organization planned to cover every inch of the county within the next two weeks, the actual drive to bring out Rock County's $1,750,000 for the second Liberty Loan was launched today by the several chairmen in charge of the cities and townships of the county. Throughout the business districts of the city, the eight committees of campaigners began their work this morning, and before noon the first applications resulting from this drive began to flow into the banks.

Until today but little has been done in actual soliciting, not only in the city, but in the rural districts. Under the direction of M. C. Jeffris, each committee has been thoroughly organized and instructed in its work, methods of covering the territory have been agreed on, headquarters established, and everything prepared for an uninterrupted campaign that will cease only when every individual in the county has been personally solicited.

Every precaution has been taken to prevent repetition of effort, every block in the city has been carefully assigned to a distinct number of solicitors; special arrangements have been perfected for drawing out the purchases of all fraternal and social organizations. A factory committee is arranging a series of meetings, all the merchants, clubs, and with the assistance of the superintendents will solicit all the employees. The women of the city under Mrs. H. A. Ford, are organizing for the campaign through the residential sections, and following a final meeting for instructions this afternoon, will begin the work.

Within the next day, it is expected that every display window in the city will be decorated with a large Liberty loan poster; more than five hundred of these are being distributed by a motor committee under N. L. Gierke, and others will follow as the campaign progresses.

Special Liberty loan stickers are being sent to every automobile owner in the city, and it is the understanding of Allan P. Levey, director for Janesville, that every motor car in the city display these handsome little posters on its windshield.

Under W. H. Deuringer, a number of meetings are being arranged to be addressed by various members of the speakers' committee. Mr. Dougherty, himself, will go to Evansville tonight to address such a gathering. The factories have not yet been reached for speakers, and within a short time, the "Four Minute Men" will begin their work at the movies of the county.

Each bank has been provided with a large number of Liberty loan buttons, to be presented to all purchasers of bonds, as an emblem of patriotism and honor.

It is likely that within a few days, the schools will have been organized to bring the loan before all the children and indirectly before their parents. A committee of citizens have already begun plans on this line, in co-operation with the school officials.

Churches of the county have already started plans for the observance of Liberty loan Sunday, which has been proclaimed for next week by Mr. Jeffris, and it is believed that every church will devote a portion of their services to an appeal for subscriptions to the loan, as an aid to the cause to humanity.

BRILLIANT SEASON FOR APOLLO CLUB

World Famous Artists Engaged to Appear in Series of Four Concerts Before Local Club.

For more than ten years the Apollo Club has been an important factor in the musical life of the city. During its history many notable artists have appeared in recitals before the members. Around the Apollo Club has grown a musical atmosphere to the city's interest in a musical way.

Last year it was thought to popularize a class of music for which the Apollo Club stood sponsor and two or three recitals were given at which popular prices were charged. It is to be regretted that these popular-priced recitals from a paying standpoint proved to be a decided failure. The program made out for the Apollo Club last year was based upon recitals of a certain amount of income from the public, but this was so disappointing that the club actually lost several hundred dollars on the entertainments thus given.

This year in all probability popular-priced recitals so far as the Apollo Club is concerned will be a thing of the past. The program for the season will be an exceptionally brilliant one. It will consist of four members of very high class artists with possibly a fifth member being given, if a sufficient number of annual membership tickets are sold.

The first number will be given by Miss Frances Ingram, who has appeared before the Apollo Club recitals before, and who by her way, scored such a great success in grand opera at Chicago last winter. Miss Ingram will be largely remembered by her Janesville friends on account of the beautiful repetition of the song "The Sweet Story of Old," which she sang when last in Janesville.

The next number will be Arthur Shattuck, who is considered to be one of the best, if not the best, pianist in the United States. Mr. Shattuck of late has received a great deal of newspaper publicity on account of his turning over to the government the income from his estate amounting to $100,000 per year. This fund is to be used to "help in the war." Mr. Shattuck also turned over to the government the use of his 95-foot launch for war purposes.

The next number will be Margery Maxwell, one of the new opera stars of the Metropolitan Opera company, which will appear in Chicago this year. Probably no one in Janesville has ever heard this gifted singer, but the fact that she is engaged as one of the stars by Campau is a sufficient guarantee phenomenon, for which she has a peculiar faculty of finding. Miss Florence Schubert, pianist, will also appear. The fourth attraction will be Antonio Sala, cellist to the Court of Spain. Sala has appeared in recital in Janesville before, and has been asked to make a return engagement by more patrons of the Apollo Club than has any other artist. The Sala entertainment will be given in a joint recital with Mme. Gertrude Hale, dramatic soprano under the management of C. W. West's Artists' Series.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

David Powell is said to have had more and varied experience with famous people of the stage than any other actor of his age can boast of.

Prior to his first visit to America which he made as a prominent member of Miss Ellen Terry's company, Mr. Powell was for three years with the late Sir Herbert Tree playing a number of roles, small, minor and large but all vastly important to the requirement of technique and interpretation.

Miss Ellen Terry saw this promising young actor and also saw the possibilities that experience would develop into actuality so she engaged Mr. Powell to play Barend in "The Good Hope" and Sidd-el-Aassif, that splendid and imperturbable Arab in Shaw's "Captain Brassbound's Conversion". On his return to England Mr. Powell was with Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson for the following three seasons and returned to America with him when Sir Johnstone came to give his great performance of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

Mr. Powell did not return with Forbes-Robertson but remained here playing under various managements. He was in "The Yellow Jacket" with the Junior Lieutenant in "Across the Border" with Holbrook Blinn's Princess players, and the lead in "The Fallen Idol" with Janet

David Powell

Beecher are performances that he made especially memorable. In pictures Mr. Powell has supported many stars. Among them are Mary Pickford in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" and the hero of "Less Than the Dust" in which Billie Burke made a great personal hit. Billie made a great personal hit. Clara Kimball Young in "The Price She Paid" and Alice Brady in "Maternity".

Mr. Powell has been busy making a number of pictures for an All-Star Corporation. "Outcast," "The Beautiful Adventure," "The Richest Girl" and "The Imposter" are new photoplays in which Miss Ann Murdock is the star and Mr. Powell is featured.

MAE MARSH TO WED
Here's shocking news for the film first nighters! Mae Marsh is engaged. The wedding is to take place some time before Thanksgiving. The bride is one of the most beautiful of the screen, a railway expert, who admits twenty-eight years. Mae is twenty-two. She met Brooks last July.

And listen—did you know that Gladys Hulette is engaged to William Parke, Jr., and that William Parke, Jr., is the son of Gladys Hulette's father? Gladys met William Parke, Jr., about a year ago and fell in love at first sight.

Anita King the courageous girl who made the transcontinental tour alone via motor car and who is now a new star feature says: "My hands, my brains and my purse are open to my country's need. Personally I am tremendously interested in secret service work. In which I had some experience in Chicago. The submarine and the airplane alike seem fascinating to me. I have made hundreds of Red Cross roses and am selling them among my friends. I have appeared at many entertainments for the benefit of the cause. Finally from my bean ranch in Idaho every bean goes to the soldiers."

Mike Donlin takes his lid off to old Hank O'Day when it comes to setting down a fresh ball player. To illustrate the point Mike tells a story on himself. Hank was really having an off day, says Mike, and some of his decisions had been pretty queer. So Mike walks up to him. "What Red you trying to do, make a minstrel show of this come?" asked Mike, hotly. "No, but they need an end man on that New York bench and you get the job for the rest of the afternoon."

The Two Men Meet.

I could not have slept, although I must have lost consciousness of our surroundings, for I was aroused by Cassion's voice shouting some command, and became aware that we were making landing on the river bank. The sun was two hours high, and the spot selected a low grass-covered point, shaded by trees. Chevet had awakened, sobered by his nap, and the advance canoe had already been drawn up on the shore, the few soldiers it contained busily engaged in starting fires with which to cook our morning meal.

I perceived D'Artigny with my first glance, standing erect on the bank, his back toward us, directing the men in their work. As we shot forward toward the landing he turned indifferently, and I marked the sudden straightening of his body, as though in surprise, although the distance gave me no clear vision of his face. As our canoe came into the shallows he sprang down the bank to greet us, hat in hand, his eyes on me. My own glance fell before the eagerness in his face, and I turned away.

"Ah! Monsieur Cassion," he exclaimed, the very sound of his voice evidencing delight. "You have guests on the journey; 'tis unexpected."

Cassion stepped over the side and greeted him, no longer a smiling gallant of the court, but brutal in authority.

"And what is that to you, may I ask, Sieur d'Artigny?" he said coldly contemptuously. "You are but our guide, and it is no concern of yours who may compose the company. 'Twill be well for you to remember your place, and attend to your duties. Go, now, and see that the men have breakfast served."

"There was a moment of silence, and I did not even venture to glance up to perceive what occurred, although I felt that D'Artigny's eyes shifted their inquiry from Cassion's face to mine. There must be no quarrel now, not until he knew the truth, not until I had opportunity to explain, and yet he was a firebrand, and it would be like him to resent such words. How relieved I felt as his voice made final answer.

"Pardon, Monsieur le Commissaire," he said, pleasantly enough. "It is true I forgot my place in this moment of surprise. I obey your orders."

I looked up as he turned away and disappeared. Cassion stared after him, smothered an oath, and evidently disappointed at so tame an ending of the affair, for it was his nature to bluster and boast. Yet as his lips changed to a grin, I knew of what the man was thinking—he had mistaken D'Artigny's actions for cowardice, and felt assured now of how he would deal with him. He turned to the canoe, a new conception of importance in the sharp tone of his voice.

"Come ashore, men; ay! draw the boat higher on the sand. Now, Monsieur Chevet, assist your niece forward to where I can help her to land with dry feet—permit me, Adele."

"It is not necessary, monsieur," I replied, avoiding his hand and leaping lightly to the firm sand. "You have forced me into marriage; the law holds me as your wife. I know not how I may escape that fate, or avoid accompanying you. So far I submit, but no further. I do not love you; I do not even feel friendship toward you. Let me pass."

He grasped my arm, turning me about until I faced him, his eyes glaring into mine.

"Not until I speak," he replied threateningly. "Do not mistake my temper, or imagine me blind. I know what has so suddenly changed you—

We Left Him With the Pere, and I Did Not Even Glance Back.

It is that gay, simpering fool yonder. But be careful how far you go. I am your husband, and in authority here." I released my arm, but did not move. My only feeling toward him at that moment was one of disgust, defiance. The threat in his eyes, the cool insolence of his speech, set my blood on fire.

"Monsieur," I said coldly, although every nerve of my body throbbled, "you may know girls, but you deal now with a woman. Your speech, your insinuation is insult. I disliked you before; now I despise you, yet I will say this in answer to what you have intimated Monsieur d'Artigny is nothing to me, save that he hath shown himself friend. You wrong him, even as you wrong me, in thinking otherwise, and whatever the cause of misunderstanding between us, there is no excuse for you to pick quarrel with him."

"You appear greatly concerned over his safety."

"Not at all; so far as I have ever heard the Sieur d'Artigny has heretofore proven himself quite capable of sustaining his own part. 'Tis more like I am concerned for you."

"For me? You fool! Why, I was a swordsman when that lad was at his mother's knee." He laughed, but with ugly gleam of teeth. "Sacre! I hate such play acting. But enough of quarrel now; there is sufficient time ahead to bring you to your senses, and a knowledge of who is your master. Hugo Chevet, come here."

My uncle climbed the bank, his rifle in hand, with face still bloated and red from the drink of the night before. Behind him appeared the slender black-robed figure of the Jesuit, his eyes eager with curiosity. It was sight of the latter which caused Cassion to moderate his tone of command.

"You will go with Chevet," he said, pointing to the fire among the trees, "until I can talk to you alone."

"A prisoner?"

"No; a guest," sarcastically, "but do not overstep the courtesy."

We left him in conversation with the pere, and I did not even glance back. Chevet breathed heavily, and I caught the mutter of his voice. "What meaneth all this chatter?" he asked gruffly. "Must you two quarrel so soon?"

"Why not?" I retorted. "The man bears me no love; 'tis but gold he thinks about."

"Gold!" he stopped and slapped his thighs. "Tis precious little of that he will ever see then."

"And who—not? Was not my father landowner?"

"Ay! till the king took it."

"Then even you do not know the truth. I am glad to learn that, for I have dreamed that you sold me to this coxcomb for a share of the spoils. Bah! What a share of the spoils! Bah! I am no angel, girl, nor pretend to a virtue more than I possess. There is truth in the thought that I might benefit by your marriage to Monsieur Cas-sion, and, by my faith, I see no wrong in that. Have you not cost me heavily in these years? Why should I not seek for you a husband of worth in these colonies? Wherefore is that a crime? Were you my own daughter I could do no less, and this man is not ill to look upon, a fair-spoken gallant, a friend of La Barre's, chosen by him for special service."

"And with influence in the fur trade."

"All the better that," he continued obstinately. "Why should a girl object if her husband be rich?"

Mr. Thos. G. Murphy, Adv. Mgr.
Care of Gazette Printing Co.

Dear Sir:

We thought we would give you an illustration of what advertising accomplishes in your paper.

On August 11th and again on the 13th we inserted a display ad in the Gazette, calling attention to our Alcazar Combination Range for burning Coal, Wood, or Kerosene Oil.

This ad has been working for us since that time. Only last week we delivered an Alcazar Range at Edgerton, and another thirteen miles east of here. In both cases our customers said they first became interested through reading our ad in the Gazette.

This and other sales convince us that it pays to let the public know what you have to sell.

FWD:MD.

Yours truly,
Frank Douglas.

The Above is a Practical Letter From a Practical Man

Mr. Douglas buys space in the Gazette because IT PAYS HIM, it is profitable for his business.

His letter shows how after many weeks his Gazette advertising still brings him returns.

Do you need any further evidence that it pays and pays well to advertise your business in The Gazette?

There is Not One Retail Business in Janesville That Cannot Advertise Profitably in the Gazette

All that is necessary is to find the human interest appeal in the goods you sell and then tell the public about them.

Results will follow as surely as the night follows the day.

Our advertising department will be glad, at any time, to discuss rates and help you prepare advertising copy that will bring returns, help you sell the goods and increase your profits.

Dinner Stories

One evening a panhandler sidled up to Collier as the player was walking around the theater, addressing him thus:
"Sir, I began life poor and in hard luck. Don't say anything more, my man," interrupted Collier, "as he slipped the man a quarter. 'It's worth money to learn how well you have held your own.'"A bachelor was traveling in a street car with a married couple of his acquaintance. It was a rainy morning. The young wife had her umbrella pulled out of the way of those who passed down the car, but an awkward boy on his way to the door managed to fall over it and break it."Oh, I'm so sorry," stammered the lad.
"Never mind; I'm sure it wasn't your fault, and the lady smiled up at him with a trace of anger or even irritation on her face.
"Well, I must say your wife is an angel!" exclaimed the bachelor, warmly. "Most women would have chattered that fellow fellow with a look, if they hadn't scorched him with words.""An angel, is she?" said the married man, as he picked up the broken umbrella and smiled quizzically at his wife.
"She may be—but she's wanted a new umbrella for a month, and now she knows I'll have to get it."They were having an argument as to whether it was correct to say of a hen she is "setting" or "sitting."
The husband was of the opinion that it was correct to say "sitting" and satisfactory conclusion they decided to submit the problem to Farmer Giles.My friends," said he, "that don't interest me at all. What I want to know when I hear a hen cackle is whether she is laying or lying."ENGLISH ART GREATEST MEAT EATERS OF WORLDLondon, Oct. 8.—England has the third highest average meat consumption in proportion to her population of any country in the world. Australia ranks first, the United States second. England's average consumption per head including men, women and children, is in normal times 126 pounds per year. Of this total meat supplies 60 per cent is home grown and 40 per cent imported, so that the average total of frozen meat brought into this country every year is 833,000 tons.How large a proportion this is of the world's supply is shown by the fact that the total output of chilled and frozen meat for the whole world is estimated at 2,500,000 tons yearly.
Of the 532,000 tons of imported meat here, a very large share now goes to the army. In fact, every pound of meat imported from Australia and New Zealand and during the last two and a half years has been government property, bought before it was shipped and brought to this country under government control.
It is only when all military needs have been satisfied that any surplus stock of frozen meat is turned over by the government to the large wholesale merchants to be sold on behalf of the government at government prices.South America being still largely neutral the requirement of meat supplies grown there is a matter of negotiation, and there is no compulsory government control. However, meat is needed in quantities as large as possible, and the government desires in its power to encourage the production and exportation to England of the largest possible amount of meat.

JANESVILLE TAKES TWO FROM FAIRIES

CARDS WIN BOTH GAMES FROM BELOIT ON SATURDAY AND SUNDAY IN CLOSE GAMES.

SERIES IS NOW A TIE

Hard Hitting by Both Teams is Feature of the Games—Last Game May Be Played Here.

The Rock county "World's Series" between the Janesville Cardinals and the Beloit Fairies is now a tie with two games credited to each team. The Cardinals tied the count by winning both games played on Saturday and Sunday by good scores. The Saturday game ended with the score 13 to 10, in a slugging match from beginning to the end. The Sunday game resulted in an 8 to 7 victory for the Cardinals.

As if now sounds one more game will have to be played to decide the winner of the series. Beloit won the first two games one week ago, but due to the strengthening of the local nine they were unable to win their third and decisive game, which would have given them the series.

Janesville played sterling ball throughout both contests and it was due to the unusual heavy hitting that they were able to take both contests. The errors were few on both sides with the result that the runs were earned by hard slugging. Beloit, on the other hand, lost heart in both games after they were behind and could not overcome the lead of the Cardinals.

The game on Saturday was one of the heaviest hitting contests seen on this side of the river. Beloit won the first two games one week ago, but due to the strengthening of the local nine they were unable to win their third and decisive game, which would have given them the series.

The Cardinals won their first run in the fourth when Pechous, O'Farrell, and Spauld hit in succession. Pechous sacrificed to second and Spauld duplicated his stunt and advanced Pechous to third. O'Farrell then came into the game and hit a home run into deep center. The blow came in the sixth and seventh frames, two runs being scored in the sixth and five in the seventh. After knocking and Spauld were out, O'Farrell got his second hit of the game and was advanced to second when Hauger was given a base on balls. Beall came to the plate and took a home run into deep center. The Cardinals won the game by a score of 13 to 10.

Thomas was hit by a pitched ball and on an attempted double steal was caught on his way to second, ending the frame.

Beloit made a last supreme effort to score in the ninth, but Schoup, replacing Spauld, had them at his mercy. Zabel grounded out, Pechous to Beall, followed by Bretton, who was out, to end the game.

Saturday's game was featured by hard hitting, with the Cards always in the lead. Four runs were made by the Cardinals in the first, second, third, fourth, sixth, seventh and ninth innings.

Schoup did the twirling for the Cards, while Tilley and Rose did the heavy work for the Fairies. Beall hit the ball hard and felled well in spite of the adverse weather conditions. The addition of Pechous and O'Farrell to the Cards line-up seemed to complete the aggressive attack. The Cardinals were able to win from the Fairies, Pechous as well as O'Farrell were members of the Chicago Cubs during the past season, and saw service in the big league.

The final game of the series will be played this week on Saturday or Sunday. The exact date or the place of playing has not as yet been decided upon by the rival managers. It is expected, however, that the teams will come to Janesville to play the last game of the series as all four of the games have been played in Beloit.

Third and Fourth Games of World's Series Will Be Played in New York on Tuesday and Wednesday.

With two games to their credit over the Giants in the World's Series, the White Sox will rest easily today, confident of their being able to cop the series. Both teams are on their way to New York, where they will play the third and fourth games of the series on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The victory on Sunday was the result of hard hitting on the part of the White Sox when Anderson was sent to the mound to replace Schupp, who was found failing under the heavy hitting of the Cardinals.

The attendance at the game was 32,000 and the receipts $73,152. Thousands of people swarmed outside the gates from Saturday evening until the time the game was over, trying to get an opportunity to see the game. There was no disorder, however, and the crowd was handled in perfect order.

The third game of the series will be played in New York on Tuesday and fans are looking for a possible New York victory due to the game being played on their home grounds. The White Sox will enter the game confident of winning with two games to their credit. Whom Rowland will send to the mound is a question to the fans. He has two dependable pitchers, Eddie Cicotte and George Williams, who have done their turn on the slab and will have to wait until the fourth game in order to get a chance again. McGraw has used four of his pitchers in the first two games and will have a hard question to decide for his twirler for the third and fourth games.

Results Show That All the Conference Eleventh Have the Usual Strong Teams Again This Fall.

Saturday saw the conference football teams in action in their first practice games of the season. Most of the teams showed up in good form, especially Ohio State, Michigan and Wisconsin. Ohio State has practically the same eleven which won the championship for them last fall and bids fair to repeat their work. Wisconsin won from Beloit 34 to 0 in a game in which the Badgers showed only old style football. Following are the results of the big games:

Northwestern, 18; Lake Forest, 0. Ohio State, 33; Ohio Wesleyan, 0. Indiana, 51; Wabash, 0. Pennsylvania State, 30; Gettysburg, 0. Cornell, 22; Oberlin, 0. Washington and Jefferson, 35; Westminster, 0. Army, 23; Carnegie Tech., 0. Illinois, 22; Kansas, 0. Michigan, 41; Case, 0. Nebraska, 100; Nebraska Wesleyan, 0. Wisconsin, 34; Beloit, 0. Scores for Saturday and Sunday Games in Chicago Were Received By Special Bulletin and Posted by the Gazette.

Those unfortunate fans of this city who were unable to get the game on the much valued pasteboards to

The World's Series games in Chicago on Saturday and Sunday, were given an opportunity to follow the game on the Gazette's special bulletin service by which the game was posted in front of the Gazette Saturday and Sunday during the process of the games to watch the results as they came in. Not only did the people follow the results by being at the Gazette to see them as they were posted, but the telephone calls which were received asking for the results kept one man busy throughout both games.

A full account of the game on Saturday, play by play, was printed in the edition of the Gazette, which was delivered to the people of the city and sold on the streets. This special service will be continued throughout the series for the benefit of the subscribers of the Gazette and for the many fans in the city.

Joe Tinker, manager of the Columbus A. A. team, says that Cicotte's "ship ball" had its origin in the minors. "Dave Danforth took the shine ball to the majors from the American Association when he joined the White Sox last year," says Tinker. "As it looks to me he showed the stunt to Cicotte and now we see the result of it. The pitchers in the Association didn't try hard to conceal their dropping of the ball and make us thought little enough of it. Dan Griner and Finneran, both of St. Paul, would rub rosin on the other and they could curve it around a house. And some of the pitchers had so tricky a ball that they not only fooled the batters but they fooled the catchers. There was an epidemic of broken fingers among the Association catchers last season."

It has been pointed out that the time is approaching when a match between the Gibbons brothers, Tom and Mike, would be a grand attraction. Tom is coming so fast that he looks able to give brother Mike a fair tussle right now. Regarding such a fight neither brother has shown much enthusiasm. They probably wouldn't care greatly to oppose each other. Mike has said in fact that he would retire from the ring first. But the way things are now they could keep the middleweight title in the family for some time.

MILK COST BOOSTERS VOLUNTEER EVIDENCE

Madison, Wis., Oct. 8.—Officials of the Milk Producers' association are voluntarily furnishing evidence in the case which has been started by the state to abate the operations of the organization in Wisconsin, according to Deputy Attorney General Walter Drew. A statute enacted at the last session giving the attorney general power to examine witnesses and obtain facts in a suit for combination to boost prices is now being given its first trial and according to the state's legal department it has produced the evidence that has been most desired.

This is the first big anti-trust suit that has been started in the state in several years and from indications at the office of the attorney general the milk dealers will not be the only ones hit by actions of this character.

The milk suits in Wisconsin will probably be followed by other actions in the state of Illinois. Some of the evidence obtained by the Cook county grand jury investigation and its raid on the headquarters of the Milk Producers' association, will probably be available in the pending suits in Wisconsin. During the past two days the sheriffs of the counties of Racine, Kenosha, Dane, Walworth, Green, Waukesha and Rock have been serving copies of the complaint filed on Saturday at Racine on the 100 individuals, officers of the 44 locals, who are named in the complaint.

The notice that suits were to be started resulted in the attorney general's office being flooded with information and the filing of the complaint has resulted in an increase in the volume of voluntary evidence tendered. The action comes up in the Racine circuit court again next Friday.
